

Honey as an antibiotic

Read "The antibacterial activity of honey derived from Australian flora" by Irish et al. (2011) in its entirety and answer the following questions.

Please do not try to fit your answers in the small space provided here. Use a separate document.

1) In a few sentences, describe the type of information found in each of the following sections of a primary paper. In other words, explain in general terms the value of each of these sections to convey a message to the rest of the scientific community.

Abstract

Introduction

Materials and Methods

Results

Discussion

Figures

2) Explain 2 new ideas that you learned from reading this paper and how the data in the paper supports each of those ideas

3) Describe at least 3 concepts that you still find confusing

4) Pick two aspects of the experimental design that you think have flaws and describe how you would improve on them